

Supported Living

CMG has over 10 years experience of providing supported living accommodation and currently supports around 200 people in England and Wales to maintain their independence and live successfully in their own homes.

The term 'Supported Living' describes a broad range of housing and support options for people with disabilities and is distinct from residential care. Some key facts about supported living and the services that CMG provide are outlined below.

Key facts about supported living

- Supported living is an approach to housing and support for people with a disability. It can include the separation of housing and support provision, of which CMG can provide both.
- Everyone, no matter how mild or profound their disability, can live in supported living with the right care and support, as the support is tailored to individual needs and can be provided on a 24 hour basis. In CMG, we have experienced support staff who work with tenants to assess their needs and draw up effective, individualised support plans which identify the specific areas where people need help to live as independently as possible, together with the outcomes they want to achieve.
- Everyone in supported living will have a tenancy agreement which upholds their rights. In CMG, we have a dedicated and highly skilled team of Tenant Liaison Officers, who support tenants to understand their rights and responsibilities. They will use accessible tools where necessary to ensure these rights and responsibilities are fully understood.
- Supported living flats and houses are 'ordinary houses in ordinary streets'. CMG's accommodation typically comprises flats with en-suites and spacious properties with shared communal space.
- Unlike residential care, (in which housing and support are provided together) the separation of the housing element means that Housing Benefit can be claimed to pay for housing costs. Also, people have the security of a tenure and cannot be moved against their will.
- The Care Quality Commission (which regulates and assesses the quality of social care services) regulates the care received by tenants in supported living accommodation. In CMG, we also have a team of Service User Quality Checkers and Relative Quality Checkers who also monitor the quality of our services.
